Fund Manager Comment

The Colombo Stock Exchange indices recorded an increase during Nov 2022 with ASPI* increasing by 0.57% while the S&P SL20 Index increasing by 5.38%. The Fund's benchmark Insurance Sector Total Return Index* increased by 3.37% while the Fund increased by 1.29%. The benchmark index is mainly driven by Ceylinco Insurance PLC Voting and Non-Voting shares which jointly constitutes more than 60% of index weight while remaining Insurance counters jointly constitutes less than 40% of index weight. During the month, there were no sector specific catalysts that impacted the benchmark index. With regard to the overall market, negative sentiment was witnessed during first half of the month driven by uncertainty over a possible domestic debt restructuring, speculations of a delay in IMF Board level approval and QoQ decline of earnings reported by key listed corporates. However the bourse bounced back during last few sessions mainly driven by EXPO which announced possible upcoming acquisitions and due to indications of a gradual decline of interest rates. Although the country is showing glimpse of recovery, we believe that there are further challenges in the short run such as lack of dollar liquidity, tax reforms & other fiscal consolidation measures required by IMF, challenges in debt restructuring and concerns of a global recession. However, beyond short term testing times, we look forward positively on equity in the medium run.
